

. . . I did browse your web-site. It's a little beyond me . . . I was going to say "intellectually", but probably it would be more accurate to say "educationally." I get a little lost with the frequent usage of words that are definitely not in my vocabulary! It never fails to tickle me, however, the way the Lord puts us all together in just the right way to minister to the people He has planned for us to reach. It sounds like you're able to speak to the well-educated, and that is a wonderful thing!

That having been said, I whole-heartedly agree with what appears to me your main point. I noticed once that in Hannah's song of thanksgiving over Samuel, her statements always begin with the "negative." 'The Lord kills, and He makes alive,' for instance. It all makes perfect sense, once you really "get it" that He gets the glory only if He's killed us off first! ☺ Genuine resurrection has got to be the most amazing miracle of all.

God bless ~

Charissa Schalk